The Hope-Blevins Highway

Hope and Hempstead county should be on the alert the next few months while the State Highway Department and the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads are figuring out the exact relocation route for the Hope-Blevins Highway (State 29) around the eastern boundary of the Southwestern Proving Ground.

Harvey Couch Dies Wednesday at Hot Springs

Builder of Utility Empire Succumbs After Long Illness

HOT SPRINGS (AP)—Harvey Couch, 63, builder of utility empires in the south and southwest, died Wednesday at his country home of Couchwood where he had in years past entertained presidents and humble farm neighbors with equal enthusiasm.

Death occurred at the Lake Cathrine home at 7:45 a. m. He had been ill for a year and acutely ill since last Sunday.

All members of the family were at the bedside when he suffered a sinking spell about 7 o'clock Wednesday morning then lapsed into a sleep from which he did not arouse. An attending physician said a dilated heart condition caused his death.

Electrical, Railway Executive
The president of the Arkansas Power and Light Co. and chairman of the boards of the Kansas City Southern and Louisiana and Arkansas railway lines had not been well since February.

In 1940 when he had an attack of influenza for many months Couch continued varied activities attending the Democratic national convention, going to Washington to see President Roosevelt about defense plans and other interests. He returned to Couchwood in October and had been there since.

Tribute to Arkansas
Funeral services have been arranged for Wednesday confirming his wishes which he outlined: "Whatever I am belongs to my family and to Arkansas."

A sunset service will be held at Couchwood Wednesday afternoon with the family and invited neighbors attending and Bishop H. H. Boaz of the Methodist church officiating.

The body will remain at Couchwood overnight and will be taken overland Tuesday to Pine Bluff to lie in state at the Lakeside Methodist church, 9 to 11 a. m. when the principal service will be read by Bishop Boaz, the Rev. Fred G. Roebuck, of Little Rock, the Rev. R. B. Moore, Lakeside pastor, and the Rev. J. M. Kirkman of Carlisle.

At about 12:30 p. m. Thursday the body will be placed on a special train "Southern Bell" of the KCS and A. A. lines to be taken to Magnolia for his birthplace and burial here.

Commissary for Proving Ground

To Sell Only Cigarettes, Soft Drinks
Commandant Says

In reply to rumors circulating throughout Hope the commandant of the Southwestern Proving Ground announced Wednesday that a commissary would be established on the reservation but "would not be in competition with the local merchants."

The commissary will sell cigarettes, soft drinks and lunches only for the convenience of the men working on the job, the commandant said.

As long as the people of Hope continue to do as they are doing now the commissary will be necessary," it was said.

This was in reference to possible hiking of prices for merchandise in local stores.

It was pointed out that at least 4,000 men and possibly more would work on the Hempstead project making it almost impossible for all of them to come to Hope for lunch.

Inspector Announced
Meanwhile it was announced that Harry Shiver of Hope had been appointed plumbing superintendent of all temporary buildings on the Proving Ground. Mr. Shiver will have charge of about 25 plumbers.

There will be approximately 350 plumbing fixtures on the temporary buildings which will be steam heated.

U. S. Protests Jap Bombing of Gunboat

Welles Confers With Jap Ambassador; Nazis Move Nearer Moscow

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. lodged immediate representation Wednesday with the Japanese government over the bombing of the American gunboat Tutuila at Chungking.

The gunboat, a member of the Yangtze river patrol, was damaged, with no injuries to the crew, and members of the U. S. embassy were narrowly missed by air raiders early Wednesday.

Under-secretary of state Sumner Welles made the announcement of the representation after a brief conference with the Japanese ambassador Admiral Nomura.

Welles declined to indicate the nature of the representation, but it was believed that Welles after conferring with President Roosevelt by telephone had called in the Japanese ambassador.

In announcing that representation had been made Welles said the government had received a report that 26 Japanese bombers flew over the Chinese capital dropping bombs near the gunboat and other American property.

By the Associated Press
Adolf Hitler's newspaper asserted Wednesday that German troops knifing 100 miles beyond Smolensk advanced to within 130 miles of Moscow while the Russians said the Red army tide was searching west and reported that Nazi tank spearheads were driven back 100 miles from the deepest penetration.

The war bulletin of Hitler's headquarters conceded that Soviet troops were pressing relief attacks to rescue trapped forces east of Smolensk but said the counter-offensive was being crushed.

Operations Continue
Elsewhere on the 2,000-mile battlefield the German communiqué said "operations are continuing according to plans."

Other Nazi reports said that on the northern front leading to Leningrad two Russian divisions (about 30,000 troops) had been wiped out west of Lake Peipus in Estonia.

The Russians said there was particularly heavy fighting and heavy German losses in the Smolensk area where the Red army was said to have blasted German infantry from trenches and destroyed them.

Soviet officials said the big German drive toward Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev was stalled with the Soviet armies fighting more and more strongly to the offensive.

Hitler's newspaper said the mighty battle was raging on a 190 mile front pivoting from Smolensk.

Meanwhile Japanese troops wifely too over France Indo-China bases within striking range of the Dutch East-Indies.

Hopkins to Moscow
WASHINGTON (AP)—Under Secretary Sumner Welles Wednesday announced that Harry L. Hopkins had gone to Moscow to discuss the question of American aid with high officials of the Soviet government.

Summer Clearance Sale at Rephan's

Rephan's Annual Summer Clearance Sale will begin at 8:30 o'clock Thursday morning, according to an announcement Wednesday by Oscar Greenberg, manager of the local department store on Second street.

The store front has been repainted and redecorated, and a new awning has been installed.

Ed L. Rephan, owner, flew from his Hot Springs home to New York City last Sunday on his seasonal buying trip, and new fall merchandise will begin arriving at the local store shortly, the manager said.

Exodus: Army Trucks Help Farmers Move Their Belongings Out of Proving Ground Reservation

These pictures, made by The Star Monday, July 28, along the Hope-Blevins highway and just east of it, show men and trucks of the 110th Quartermaster Regiment, 35th Division, Second Army, Little Rock, helping evacuate Hempstead county farmers from the Southwestern Proving Ground reservation. Twenty 2½-ton trucks arrived here Sunday under command of First Lieut. Melvin Amen, heading 43 enlisted men; and they will be here through Thursday night, July 31.

TOP—Lieut. Amen, left, and Sergeant Thomas Virgil Ireland, driver, and their overgrown "Jeep" car, really day the trucks operated here. The lieutenant, sergeant and all the company of 44 are from Nebraska.

MIDDLE—Soldiers are unloading hay in a barn, having hauled it out of the condemned area. On top of the load, at the extreme right, is the farmer, W. J. Schooley, well known Hempstead countryman.

BOTTOM—Soldiers break down a barn on the Hope-Blevins highway and prepare to haul the salvaged material in an Army truck to some new location for a farmer.

Hope Man Put in No. 1 Group of U. S. Senate

Succeeds Senator Byrnes, South Carolina, Who Is on Supreme Court

U. S. Senator Lloyd Spencer, Hope, received a telegram here at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon notifying him that he had been placed on the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, one of the most important of all governmental groups.

The telegram said: "I am happy to inform you that you were today selected by the Steering Committee to succeed Senator James F. Byrnes on the Committee on Banking and Currency. Regards, 'LESLIE BIFFIE'."

"Clerk of the Majority."
"Washington, D. C."

Senator Byrnes, South Carolinian, recently was appointed to the United States Supreme Court, creating the vacancy on the Senate Banking and Currency Committee now filled by Senator Spencer.

Senator Spencer told The Star Wednesday afternoon: "I particularly wanted to be on this committee because during this emergency it is especially important that we have sound fiscal policies, a cause to which I will devote my best efforts."

"It's just as important for a nation to stay on a sound financial basis as to arm for National Defense."

Senator Byrnes, my predecessor on the Banking and Currency Committee, was one of the most influential men in the senate, and it is a great honor to be appointed to succeed a man of his calibre."

Hope Party to Gulf Sunday

Senator Spencer Heads Group of 10 Deep-Sea Fishermen

A group of 10 Hope and Hempstead county men, including Senator Lloyd Spencer, will take off here Sunday for Bayou LaBattre (Coden, Ala.), is the postoffice) on the third annual "Hempstead County Deep-Sea Fishermen's Excursion."

They will be gone a week, and a good time is guaranteed for all.

Around town Wednesday Senator Spencer was displaying a mammoth fishing reel mounted on a pole made up especially for him by the Bruner Ivory Handle company, and fitted up by Jim Wilson, redoubtable skeet-shooter and fisherman of Columbus.

In the party heading for the Gulf Sunday will be:

Arkansas Unit to Alaska

206th Coast Artillery Will Be Transferred Soon

EL DORADO (AP)—The Arkansas 206th coast artillery and anti-aircraft regiment, now stationed at Fort Bliss, Texas, will be transferred to Alaska the Daily News said Wednesday.

The newspaper said that member of the regiment notified relatives Tuesday night that they would be transferred. The 206th is one of the state's three national guard units.

Col. Elgan C. Robinson, Marianna, World war veteran commands the regiment.

C. C. Lewis Returns From Buying Tour

C. C. Lewis, manager of the Charles A. Haynes Co., returned Tuesday from a buying trip to New York City.

Mr. Lewis was accompanied by Mrs. Lewis and Miss Mary Haynes on the trip. He stated that fall business prospects are unusually good.

The fellow who can always laugh and not care what others think about it, is the kind you never find in sanitariums.

'Free French' One Year Old

DeGaullists Hold Area Six Times That of France

By RUSSELL G. LANDSTORM
AP Feature Service

LONDON — A little over a year ago Gen. Charles de Gaulle proclaimed:

"The flame of French resistance must never die and will not die." Hundreds of his countrymen had wept their fill at the collapse of France and responded eagerly to De Gaulle's summons to "all French officers and soldiers in Britain or who can come to Britain with their arms or without their arms."

Soon he had some 25,000 men ready to serve him, plus an auxiliary "Corps Feminin." Now his army numbers 40,000. Free France dug itself in solidly in Equatorial Africa and some smaller African colonies, in colonial outposts in the Pacific, in India and New Caledonia. Only a few weeks ago, it was reported, Free French supporters maneuvered a bloodless coup in Tahiti, seizing sympathizers.

Free French territory covers nearly three million square miles, about six times the size of France itself, and boasts several modern ports and air bases.

Free French troops campaigned with the British against the Vichyites in Syria, suffering about 1,250 casualties according to official reports.

More Than 100 Ships
The Free French navy includes more than 100 ships—battleships, destroyers, motor torpedo boats, submarines, mine layers and smaller craft. One of the submarines is said to be the largest in the world, but its very size is a disadvantage.

The air force numbers more than 1,000 flyers, many of whom fought with the British in Ethiopia and Libya.

Under the leadership of Simone Mathieu, the celebrated lawn tennis player, the Corps Feminin is patterned after British women's auxiliary organizations. It furnishes secretaries, orderlies, drivers and nurses to Free French headquarters here.

Working men replied to De Gaulle's call as well as soldiers. French skilled laborers staff an entire airplane repair plant from the director down to the youngest apprentice. Other workers are helping in demolition of bombed parts of the city.

Still others have been absorbed into British forces.

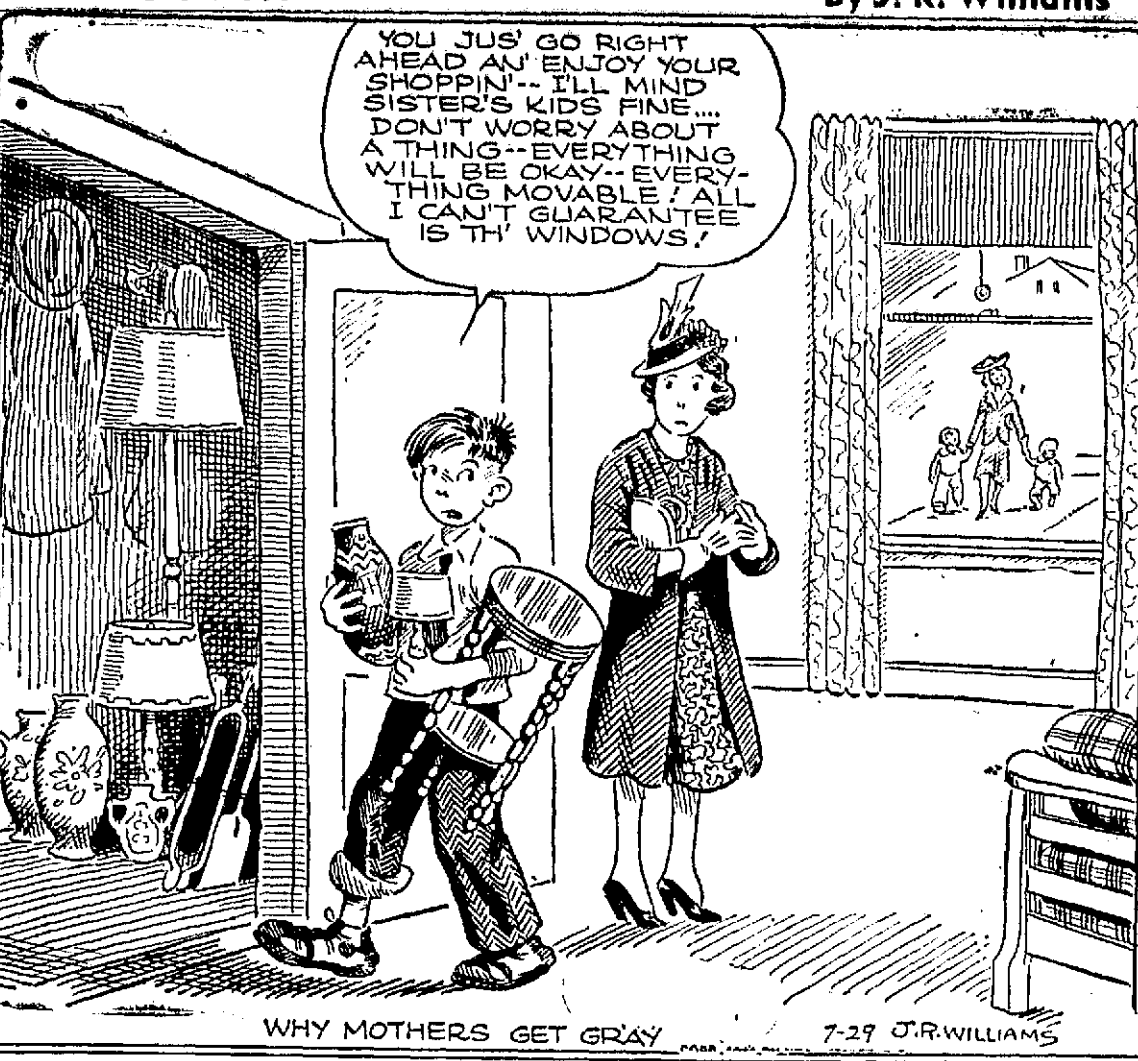

De Gaulle's deputy in London is Admiral Muselier, a slightly-built, lively native of Provence. He possesses something of his chief's gift, if not his oratorical gift, is affable, modest and has a sense of humor.

The head of the Free French in the Middle East is General Catroux, tall, lithe son of a general and an authority on the land over which he has jurisdiction. Born in Algeria, he is a veteran of the World War.

Captured Five Times
De Gaulle himself is 50. He was wounded three times in the World War and was captured five times at Verdun, escaping each time until finally he got back to the French lines.

In 1934 he published a book, "The

New Support for Theory

Science Beginning to Believe Einstein's Theory

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

CHAPLAIN HILL, N. C. — If an airplane flying 100,000 miles a second, carries a cannon whose muzzle velocity is 100,000 miles a second, how fast does the shell travel when fired straight ahead?

The answer by ordinary mathematics is 200,000 miles a second, that is, the plane's speed plus the shell's velocity. But it is only 155,153 miles by Einstein mathematics, as demonstrated by Dr. Archibald Henderson, University of North Carolina mathematician.

The demonstration comes from a new way of proving Einstein's theory of simple relativity. This theory caused a lot of dispute, for Einstein said it showed a watch in motion keeps different time than one at rest.

He added that you couldn't detect this on earth, because the difference did not appear until motion approached the speed of light, which is 186,000 miles a second.

Dr. Henderson, with a student, C. H. Frick, developed a simple geometric method of showing Einstein's correctness. Dr. Henderson said it is the simplest proof yet found.

Applying it to planes and cannon balls with the excessive speeds, he says Einstein's ideas are shown to be entirely right. However, present day fighting planes, and bullets, too, for all their boasting, are still in the "slow" class.

Actually, the bullets don't go as the aviation experts calculate but the differences are not enough to miss hitting the enemy plane.

Odd Dish
A dish always served at formal dinners in Japan is sashimi. It is made up of slices of raw fish which the diners dip into mustard and soy sauce and eat with great relish.

Inhabitants of ancient Lydia, in Asia Minor, invented the game of dice as a substitute for eating. For 22 years, dice and a ball game were played every other day to help take their minds off the lack of food in the days of famine.

Army of the Future, which is said to have given the Germans many ideas on mechanical warfare. Vichy has sentenced him to death.

The African natives among De Gaulle's troops look on him as a kind of god. There is a tribal legend about him that runs something like this: "De Gaulle was a corporal. He was dead. He had been dead for five years. In his grave he heard that a German corporal (Hitler) had taken his Paris. He leaped from his grave shouting 'I am a general now, and I'll show you something.'"

FDR'S Blacklist Frees Hemispheric Trade

WASHINGTON — One of the most important angles of President Roosevelt's announcement of the Latin American trade blacklist, generally overlooked in the hullabaloo over its sweeping, restrictive and negative provisions, is freeing hemispheric trade by relaxing the controls previously existing on U. S. commerce with Central and South American republics.

It is an intricate and a long story, and many details of its administration have not yet been clarified in Washington. In general, however, by listing specifically the 1800 blocked nations with whom U. S. firms can no longer do business, the way is cleared for U. S. exporters and importers to trade with all other firms numbering many times more than the firms now on the blacklist.

Heretofore, there has been considerable confusion about what Latin American firms U. S. nationals could trade with. There was, for instance, the general treasury order freezing trade with all countries of continental Europe and their nationals all over the world. That order was aimed primarily at Germans and Italians, but it applied also to Spaniards and Portuguese nationals, even though they were doing business in the Argentine or Brazil. What American exporters were up against was an intricate job of research, determining whether their agents in Latin America had any Spanish or Portuguese or Italian or German blood in them. If so, trade with them was not permitted except under special license.

All Won't Be Confusion
The new blacklist simplifies that rigamarole tremendously and it lifts a lot of bothersome restrictions which had been interfering with the much-desired wartime expansion of Latin American trade. Trade with Latin America is now entirely unrestricted except for the 1800 firms on the blacklist and for those few essential defense items on which there is U. S. export control. It no longer makes any difference whether a firm in Latin America is controlled by Spaniards or Portuguese—or even Dutchmen or Frenchmen. If their names are not on the blacklist, it's okay to go ahead and do business with them.

To legalize this trade, Treasury has issued a general license permitting all such transactions without the previously required specific license. This license applies to everything except purely financial transactions, such as transfers of funds. The purpose of this remaining restriction is to keep a check on foreign exchange transactions and prevent a leak of foreign nations' assets back to Europe.

Under certain conditions, trade may even be permitted with firms on the blacklist, but only under temporary license. Transactions not yet completed, contracts which have only a short time to run, and emergency transactions may be given license for limited operations. In general, the lid is to be kept on tight and trade prohibited with any firm on the list, though the list itself can be changed by additions or removals.

Here's How It Works
To show how the new blacklist regulations operate, take the example of a firm which has for many years been selling its goods to South America through a German company now on the blacklist. Finding that it can no longer do business with its old agent, the U. S. firm is immediately confronted with the problem of finding a new outlet.

If the U. S. firm is small and cannot afford the expense of sending an executive to South America to investigate and sign up a new agent, it can get assistance through the commercial intelligence office in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, U. S. Department of Commerce. This office has compiled a list of hundreds of thousands of firms all over the world.

These firms are rated, in a kind of international Dunn and Bradstreet listing, and their credit, reputation and general business rating are appraised, as well as the types of products which they handle and their other connections are cataloged. It is from this master index that American business men can get leads on new connections.

U. S. consular agents in the foreign service of the Department of State are equipped to carry through further in establishing new contacts and agencies for American exporters. In general, all the field work in the other American republics will be handled by the consular service.

How to Break Down, Collect

'Meet People' Program Features Youngsters

By HEIMAN R. ALLEN
AP Feature Service Writer

NEW YORK — The way Doodles Weaver works is by "breaking down." Doodles is the gaunt, red-haired, funny boy from California who burst upon Broadway in "Meet the People," the musical which a bunch of youngsters organized in Hollywood and brought to town after a leisurely cross-country road tour.

His real name is Winstead Sheffield Glendinning Dixon Weaver, but people took to calling him Doodles because he used to sing "Yankee Doodle" when a boy.

Doodles finds it difficult to explain exactly what he means by "breaking down." It has something to do with breaking down the barrier between entertainer and audience, but there's more to it than that. He tried to tell me about it at breakfast one afternoon.

"Breaking down is like when you go out on the stage and start your act—and well, first thing you have to do is break down. You're starting your act and you have to break down. You have to get the people with you. You have to get them to like you. You have to get them to feel like you're all pals just sitting around and you are telling stories."

Doodles learned a lot about the theory of breaking down as a psychology student at Stanford. Then, as now, he was a follower of the "wacky" school of entertainment. "For a while," he says, "they didn't know whether I was a student or a patient."

An example of Doodles' collegiate

Fall of France Brings Activity

America Turns Attention to Latin America

Most Americans have dried their tears over the fall of France and are now worrying and working in an effort to stave off such a fate for the republics to the south, where democracy still gets lip service at least. Here are a few books which may help you straighten out a few things on these subjects.

Philip Leonard Green's "Our Latin American Neighbors" (Hasting House; $2) is a good primer for anyone starting to study Central and South America.

The varied and complicated racial and cultural strains which make up the peoples we usually lump as "Latin" are well described, showing the oversimplification of North Americans who usually think of them all as Spanish and let it go at that. There are excellent hints for those trying to make the "Good Neighbor Policy" work on how the Latins think and act, and how they got that way.

"Democratic France" (Coward-McCann; $3.50) by Richard Walden Hale, Jr., doesn't blueprint line by line why France fell, but his book is a clear flash back on just about everything that happened politically from the Franco-British war to Vichy. One definite impression is that the French would rather fight each other than foreigners. The account of the Republic's constitution is significant now that Vichy is writing a new basic law.

The petty parliamentary squabbles, intrigues of the Royalists, Bonapartists, Socialists and numerous other parties and persons down to and including Pierre Laval and Admiral Darlan, the last press, the mobs of Paris all lead to the conclusion that France never was a democratic republic in the sense we know in this country.

Polish Artist Arthur Szyk proves in a volume of powerful cartoons, "The New Order" (Putnam's; $1.50) that the New Order isn't new and isn't order. Many of the drawings have a medieval flavor especially appropriate in portraying the overlords of Europe and Asia. He has put in them the spirit of totalitarianism—the brutality, phony splendor and weaknesses of their "strong men." This volume will not have a large sale in Europe or Japan—this year.

Light Reading for Heavy Days

An understanding of immigrant life in America and insight into the ways of the "little people" fills Sidney Meller's "Home of the Brave" (Macmillan; $2.50). Crammed with birth, marriages, baptisms, fiestas and scandals, this novel is the tale of the Dorrell family and their neighbors on San Francisco's Telegraph Hill.

Katherine Brush sets the stage for a Joy Through Wiscrackers movement in her latest offering of gay and slightly screwy young people in "You Go Your Way" (Farrar & Rinehart; $2). Your way will be full of realism about the men who make jitterbugs jitter, try Henry Steig's "Send Me Down" (Knopf; $2.50). In his first novel, Steig beats out a rapid rhythm which may land him a good job in the novel-writing business.

John Stephen Strange's "Murder Gives a Lovely Light" (Doubleday; Doran; $2) will give you some lovely chills these hot days. A murder well done and a story well written, the dies include a huge billboard on Times Square. Mystery fans will also welcome a new hero in Margaret Miller's "The Invisible Man" (Doubleday; Doran; $2) by the name of Dr. Paul Poyne. He does just that in making crime unprofitable.

A volume to dazzle your friends and one that should delight art lovers, professionals or dabblers, is "The Pictures of Lynette" (Oxford; $3.50), containing 150 plates and 200 illustrations on the work of the man many consider Italy's most eminent sculptor before Michelangelo. Beautifully printed and bound.

New Words, Old Bible

Of the making of new versions of the Bible there is no end, and following the revision of the Douay (Catholic) Bible, comes "The New Testament in Basic English" (Dutton; $2).

The majestic rhythms of the familiar authorized version are lost in this simplification, yet the basic English sentences are not without dignity. There is some merit in the publishers' claims that sometimes in the King James version the meaning is submerged by the music of the language; that here the simplicity of the wording brings out thoughts hitherto difficult to recognize.

Mary King's "Quincie Boliver" (Houghton Mifflin; $2.50) is a rip-roaring story of a Texas oil boom town there by big migratory workers drawn there by big wages both in wages and excitement. Quincie, an imaginative girl, is popped down in the middle of this with her shiftless father, and from there the story gets oilier, rougher and better.

Those long, many-hatched freighters that pull into the Great Lakes harbors will never look masculine again to readers of "Not by Bread Alone" (Doubleday Doran; $2.50).

enterprise was the time he and a fellow wack ran through the sleeping cars on a trainload of Stanfords returning from the 1935 Rose Bowl game, shouting, "Everybody up right away—next stop Palo Alto."

The announcement was premature, and a lot of people reeled this sort of breaking down. One of them was the dean. He resented it so much that Doodles and his pal were suspended.

They got back in, but Doodles did not wait for graduation. He went to work for Hal Roach in 1937 and was wacky in front of a movie camera or a brief time.

He safe to New York then and got a job with Richard Humber's orchestra doing personality caricatures, ack in Hollywood, he did some movie work.

You can see him in Harold Lloyd's new picture, "A Guy, A Girl and a Gob."

Home Defense in New York

Largest City Leads Nation in Civilian Work

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — You have heard what most of the big cities, especially New York, are doing about civilian defense, but I want to tell you about a fair-sized chunk of the "hinterlands" that look matters into their own hands and now have the jump on a lot of the metropolitan areas—including Washington.

I got this straight from Julian Capers, Jr., of Longview, Tex., who has had a hand in it all.

Almost as soon as civilian defense was mentioned, the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, which embraces 70 counties and better than 3,000,000 people, appointed a national defense committee, headed by Jess A. McGill, a Scot from Paris, Tex. The committee was notified Washington they were ready and waiting. And what happened? Nothing.

As Capers puts it, "We got a little weary of waiting for some one in Washington to get down to brass tacks and outline a plan for organizing civilian sentiment and support. So the committee took the bull by the horns."

Three members of the committee were put in the field with instructions to organize "County Councils for National Defense" in every one of those 70 counties. It wasn't any slap-hazard idea either. They had a plan. They called meetings and at each practically on demand if that's what it took, were the county judge, the mayors of the important cities and owners and leaders of ex-service organizations, labor groups, the schools women's clubs, and prominent farmers. And when the meeting was over, those folks found they were the "county council for national defense."

Keep the Field Clear

Through McGill's committee, these counties were and are now being apprized of every phase of civilian defense. They are clearing houses for all authentic information, thus keeping the field clear of all bogus fund collectors unfounded rumors and national defense racketeers. They are quickly informed of every new law, regulation restriction and priority that issues from here and maintain information services to pass these along to the public.

When the United Service Organizations drive started, they were weeks ahead of many communities. When the call went out for the collection of aluminum, the councils were ready and waiting and putting it over caused no more organizational fuss than passing the plate in church on Sunday.

The county councils also took over

Most persons never thought of curtains on the windows, cupboards, and kitchens in connection with freights. Mary Frances Doner, who spent most of her early summers traveling on freighters commanded by her father, accurately and romantically has depicted life aboard the vessels that ply the inland lakes from Duluth to Buffalo.

Straight from the Wild West comes Leon V. Almirall's "Canines and Coyotes" (Caxton; $3). It's all about the sagerbrush version of riding to hounds, only coyotes, not foxes, furnish the sport. They even pile the dogs in the back of a Model-T and stomp across prairies and sand. Grey-tusked deerboards are used, and what the author describes as "a sporting rug seldom equaled in the annals of hunting."

Auction Articles May Be Left With Rural Stores

Household articles and farm implements which farmers intend to offer at the second monthly Farmers Free Auction & Sales Day, which will be held in Hope Monday, August 4, may be left at the nearest rural store, where they will be collected and hauled to the Auction free of charge, the Trade Promotion Committee of Hope Junior Chamber of Commerce announced Wednesday.

Silas Sanford, well known auctioneer, will tour the territory immediately, interviewing farm families, lining up articles to be offered at this second auction, and making other necessary arrangements. He has been retained as field agent by the Junior Chamber of Commerce committee, sponsors of the event which is held in Hope the first Monday of every month.

Mrs. R. L. Branch Has Card Games for Contract Club
Mrs. Roy Stephenson was the high scorer for the members of the Tuesday Contract club at the meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. L. Branch.

Two tables for the members and one table for the guests were arranged on the screened-in porch of the Branch home. Brilliantly colored garden flowers were arranged in flower baskets to add to the attractiveness of the summer living room.

The playing resulted in Mrs. Hamilton Orton receiving the guest high prize.

After the games a delicious salad and ice course was served by the hostess.

Five Sponsors Attend Picnic For Methodist Juniors
Mr. and Mrs. Dolph Whitten Jr., Mrs. W. A. Mussett, and Misses Virginia McCorkle and Virginia O'Neil, sponsors of the Junior Department of the First Methodist church, chaperoned the members at a jolly picnic swim at the Pines Tuesday afternoon.

After the swim a delectable picnic supper was served to those attending.

LESSONS IN LOVE

BY JERRY BRONDFIELD

COPYRIGHT, 1941,
NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Faced with the problem of entertaining an Indian, Barbara plans to take Dugan to a formal party at the Starlight Terrace. Barbara admits that Dugan is really quite pleasant, but she still enjoys the prospect of showing him off to her friends. Dugan assures her that he has formal clothes for the function and Barbara is chagrined to discover that Dugan's regard for her circles of sophisticated friends is not too high.

DUGAN GOES FORMAL

CHAPTER III
"NOTHING like relaxing after dinner," said Uncle Hank, pulling out his pipe. "Beautiful night, too."

"The stars, especially," Dugan said softly, turning his head skyward.

Barbara noticed his profile and it bothered her. "Surely your Oklahoma stars must be much prettier," she said loftily.

He turned to her. "Yes," he replied slowly. "They are. Much prettier. You'll have to come down and see them sometime."

"Would it be safe?"
"Quite," he assured her. "You have my guarantee."

"What's it worth?"
He walked up to her, very deliberately. "Much more than those given to a lot of my friends by some of yours, years ago."

From the depths of his comfortable chair, Uncle Hank groaned. Something told him he had engineered a little too much.

Hank dropped into Dugan's room before they retired. "Well, Dugan my boy, what do you think of her?"

Dugan grinned as he yanked off his tie. "Hank, she's the most beautiful thing I've ever seen. Looks as though she has more spirit than a pinto pony, but very obviously, uh . . ."

Hank grunted. "Spoiled . . . very obviously. All my fault, too. I raised her since she was a kid and I didn't have too much time to devote to her. She's had everything . . . probably too much. And believe me, Dugan," he added, jabbing a stubby finger for emphasis, "the man that gets her will need a plenty strong rope and a high corral."

Dugan Blake was inclined to agree. The lovely Miss Chase, he understood, had talents no end.

Dugan didn't like women to have too much talent.

BARBARA thought it strange when Uncle Hank told her Dugan would have to meet her party at the Starlight Terrace. A business conference had tied him up later than he had expected.

Larry Grover came along to pick her up. "Sorry I'm a little late," he apologized. "One of my ponies came down with a fever."

Barbara showed her disgust. "If you paid as much attention to your business as you do to polo you'd be one of the greatest architects in the country."

"Correction," he said. "THE greatest. But polo is more fun."

"It must be. You haven't called in two weeks."

"I'm flattered that you noticed," he laughed.

The whole crowd already was there when they arrived—Sue Bishop, Charley Gilroy, Ina and Bruce Meade, and a half dozen others.

"Where's the guest of honor?" they chorused. "Don't tell us he got cold feet and beat it back to the hills," Charley said.

"He'll be here," Barbara promised.

It was a matter of seconds later that they heard the commotion. Over the hum of excited voices on the other side of the room she could hear the high, flat voice of Henry, the head-waiter.

Then Barbara gasped. Henry's back appeared first, and then as he was swept aside with one imperative arm, a buckskinned, moccasined Indian strode into view, a solitary bright blue feather arising from a head band.

They sat in stunned silence as he approached and bowed, arms folded, before Barbara.

Barbara knew she had to say something but words just wouldn't come out of her mouth. She looked past Dugan and saw Ina Meade's eyes standing out like bugs.

Barbara finally recovered. "This is—Chief Leaping Water," she stammered, introducing Dugan all the way around.

Dugan bowed again and they each nodded dumbly. All but Sue. Her pent-up breath exploded.

"Boy! Isn't he the item!"
Dugan, sitting down between Barbara and Larry, smiled. "I seemed to have a little difficulty getting in. Especially with the head waiter."

"Did he try to stop you—for some reason or other?" one of the girls queried.

Dugan leaned toward her slightly. "He changed his mind, however. I told him I would cut out his heart and throw it to the dogs."

SOMEONE knocked over a water glass. Barbara turned to Dugan, frigidly. "Your costume is colorful, if not correct."

"It is not a costume and it is correct," he replied evenly. "Evening clothes are supposed to be the finest one has. These are the finest an Indian can wear. This feather," he added, "was part of the very correct ceremonial dress I wore when made chief of my tribe. And now—may I be honored with a dance?"

Barbara looked startled.

"I think I can manage," he added significantly.

His assurance was an understatement. His dancing was smooth, superb, as good as that of any man she had ever known.

There was a bright flash as they glided near the end of the floor. Someone had taken a picture.

At the table Sue nudged Larry Grover. "If he's an Indian, it's me for the great open spaces," she said enthusiastically. "Ever see eyes like that . . . and look at those shoulders?"

Larry grinned. Then he sat up stiffly. "If he's an Indian—"

"What did you say?" Sue asked. "Nothing," he said curiously.

Larry took them home when it was all over and bade them good night.

Barbara let her wrap slide from her shoulder as Dugan opened the door. "Allow me to say I had a very fine time," Dugan said gravely. "It was very interesting."

"Interesting?" Barbara echoed. "I'd say it was slightly on the riotous side. I won't hear the end of this for months, thanks to you."

"Thanks to me? You had planned a show. So we had a show. But we have a saying, Miss Chase . . . 'the whip can strike from both ends.'"

Most Exciting White House Job, Says Grace Tully

By ELEANOR RAGSDALE
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — If you've been wondering how President Roosevelt has been getting along recently with his right-hand private secretary, Margaret "Missy" Leland, on the sick list, stop worrying—understand Grace Tully is on the job.

Good-looking, zealous Grace is "Acting Private Secretary to the President" now, although she still holds her former $3600 title of assistant to the "Incredible Missy." Grace's 13 years of Roosevelt experience make her a runner-up for the Roosevelt Service Medal held by "Missy" with 21 years.

It takes a little of the drama out of the situation to have such an experienced hand stepping into the intimate White House position. No heart flutterings, no stage-fright, none of the familiar repudiation every secretary feels about "how to handle the boss." At least Grace Tully won't admit any of these things.

"I may have felt these things long ago when I first started in working for the Roosevelts," she qualifies with a twinkle in her blue Irish eyes. "But even then I started in working for Mrs. Roosevelt and she puts everyone at ease." Now Miss Tully takes on the thousand personal jobs the President has for her—personal letters to answer, books and pictures to select, visiting God-sons to be looked after, special dishes to be ordered—plus the typing of speeches and handling of vital notes and documents, without turning a hair of her upswep collar.

"One does the best one can, even though it may not be perfect," she says.

Two Jobs in 23 Years
Grace Tully was born in Bayonne, N. J. Her schooling and secretarial training were all in New York, as was her first job, that of secretary to Cardinal Hayes. She's a Catholic, herself—has a brother in the priesthood, in fact—and stayed with the Cardinal ten years. She is justly proud of her job record—only two in 23 years. Evidently she doesn't let her tendency to procrastinate on personal matters carry over into her official life.

Her tastes are those of a New Yorker. Theatrical first nights. Prize-fights. And baseball. She can't get to many games while on the job, for her hours are usually 10 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. But she and her mother, with whom she lives, are both fans, follow the various clubs, and are planning to take in some night ball games this summer, if Secretary Tully does not crack down too hard on the electric power consumption.

Most exciting times around the White House office, she says, are speech-writing sessions. Advisors, phrase-makers and extra stenographers make the Executive Offices hum. "We just keep at it, revising and recopying late into the night, sometimes several days running. I always type the first draft and the President's reading copy." And often Grace Tully's eyes are the only ones that see the President's last minute additions, scrawled hastily on the manuscript in his own hand.

"Hitler is now cribbing the surprise 'stab in the back' phrase," chortles Grace Tully, with a humor that must stand her in good stead to parry the President's gibes as well the friendly cracks of newsmen and photographers who cover F. D. R.

"Yes, Grace is a swell egg," seems to be the reportorial consensus. Grace Tully needs her sense of humor and her steady nerves, too, in the strenuous double job she's doing. "Missy" Leland gave in after years of the heart-breaking race and is recovering from neuritis and chronic heart ailment. It may be months before she is able to take up her job again. Meanwhile Grace is wisely "sleeping every minute possible," and not indulging in any strenuous pursuit—"not even a hobby."

But she does love dancing. And though she hasn't any "steady," she is frequently seen with Congressional or semi-official escorts stepping out at Washington's swanky Versailles Room or the breezy Shoreham Terrace.

Movie Children Doing Well, Thank You

HOLLYWOOD — There are no Holts barred in the scramble for stardom. Old Jack was a headliner longer and more steadily than anybody else in pictures and he still makes up. He is the children of screen actors and actresses who are trained or encouraged to take up the mask of make-believe.

Frank Morgan, incidentally, is going around bragging about his son, George. It seems that George has a job, and likes it, on the night shift at the Douglas airplane factory.

Quite a few kids plan to become directors, producers or scenarists. Claude Blayton tells how he scolded Nipper, his son, for doing so badly with his lessons at school. "Don't you want an education?" he asked sternly. "What do you think you can do if you grow up and don't know anything when you have to strike out for yourself?"

"Well," said the youngster timidly, "I could be a movie writer, like you, and make $2500 a week."

Father Knows Best
The pretty daughter of Nunnally Johnson, writer-producer, seemed headed for an acting career. At least, Marjorie was headed for New York, and Johnson mentioned it to Groucho Marx recently. Groucho said that for some tennis matches and maybe Marjorie could go along.

They thought about it for several days, right up to the night before the youngsters were to leave, and decided it would be all right. Then, at midnight, Johnson telephoned Marx. "You don't have to worry about an elopement," he said. "And incidentally, the trip's off."

Groucho asked why. "Well," explained Johnson, "I've just had a call from Marjorie. She and Ken Carter, a press agent at Universal, have eloped."

Director Sam Wood's shapely offspring seems well launched after a flight and flurry of press agent hocus-pocus. After changing her name to K. T. Stevens—for the announced purpose of seeking an independent career—and after posing for a series of decorative pictures, she was kept busy for a month rejecting studio contract offers. Now she has settled on a Broadway bid, and in a couple of months movie scouts will be rushing backstage to "discover" her.

At this sitting, I don't find many second-generation Hollywood names coming into prominence. J. C. Nugent's boy, Elliott, is too well established as an actor, writer and more recent-wait until one letter is answered before writing another?

What would you do if—
Your son or daughter who is away from home doesn't write as often as you would like—
(a) Complain in each of your letters about how seldom he writes?
Answers
1. No.
2. No. Not unless you enjoy doing it.
3. Too much. If you don't put enough on it, there will be in-judgment at the other end, and the person to whom you are writing will have to pay to receive your letter.
4. Certainly.
5. No.
Best "What Would You Do?" solution — (b) is the diplomatic way, while (a) usually causes nothing but antagonism.

WE, THE WOMEN
Miss Millett Sees "Yoo-Hoo" As Milestone of Progress
By RUTH MILLETT

Girls, we've come a long way in our struggle for equality. Only a few years ago (and don't say you can't remember that far back if you're twenty-five) if a girl, by wearing shorts where she could be seen from a highway, had been whistled at by a passing man or men—it would have been the girl's fault.

And if her Papa had found out about it—there would have been trouble and plenty of it. Even Papa would have believed that it was his daughter's own fault, "for running around with practically no clothes on"—as men used to say in the old days.

But you know what happened when that very incident recently occurred. The young men, who happened to be soldiers, were punished and the girls went right on playing golf, as innocent of starting anything as any girls could be.

That's coming quite a way from the days of the Blonnie girls, when it was considered any man's right to most his bounden duty—to let out cat-calls and make personal remarks at any woman seen wearing that unfeminine, "revealing" form of dress called bloomers.

May Be On Road to True Equality
It's sort of nice to look back and see just how far we've come on the long road to equality.

Maybe in our own lifetime we will see the man branded as rude and a bore who makes fun of women's hats, says "that's a woman for you" about a woman driver or thinks that the fact that a woman is pretty and is alone after dark gives him the right to try to pick her up.

And that, girls, will be true equality—so far as the verdict of public opinion has anything to do with it.

Questions on Page One
1. C. E. Duryea was first auto inventor in U. S., in 1892.
2. A jaywalker is a pedestrian, but a careless one, who walks across the street between intersections or against traffic lights. A pedestrian is any person about.
3. The spark plug consists of two electrodes separated by an air gap. When electric charge comes through the plug, it jumps the gap, creating a spark to ignite the gasoline.
4. The fan belt connects the fan of a revolving part of the motor, thus turning the fan, which in turn keeps the motor cool.
5. The term "scored," when applied to brake drums or cylinders, means marred by ridges or grooves, to impair efficiency.

Kroger Heavy Peach Buyer

C. W. LaRoy Handling Peach Purchases for Company

Following a practice of several years standing, Kroger stores will be represented in the Arkansas peach deal by a buyer who will make his headquarters in Nashville to purchase fruit from growers in the adjacent territory, it was announced by George Houston, Kroger branch manager in charge of operations in this area.

C. W. LaRoy, who has handled the Arkansas peach deal for Kroger for several years, began buying operations about July 20 and will remain in the field until the deal is completed, according to Mr. Houston who pointed out that Kroger annually buys thousands of bushels of Arkansas Elberta peaches which are sold in the firm's stores in Arkansas and in neighboring states.

Mr. Houston added that Kroger stores throughout the south and mid-west are planning one of the most intensive peach sales campaigns ever staged on any produce item. He pointed out that this year's record crop of sixty-six million bushels of peaches is the largest in 10 years and 12 million bushels in excess of the 10-year average. As a result, he said, extraordinary sales effort will be necessary to move the bumper crop without serious loss to producers.

At the request of growers, Kroger and other chain food stores have agreed to stage a Producer-Consumer promotion to aid in marketing this important crop. Other retailers also have joined the movement and the federal government has approved a campaign to stimulate home eating as a defense measure.

Growers and retailers are hopeful that the peach drive will be as successful as other Producer-Consumer campaign products have been in the past four years. In more than 30 of these drives various agricultural surpluses have been relieved without loss to growers, while consumers were assured good values.

Kroger stores will feature peaches in newspaper advertising, window and interior banners, leaflets, recipes, and through mass displays of fruit during the entire marketing season, Mr. Houston said.

There comes a time in our lives that we regret not having spoken certain words on certain occasions, yet most of our regrets come from having said too much at an unforgettable time.

County Seeking Electric Funds

Mayor Empowered to Buy Land for State Police

Hempstead county officials, following a threat of the electrical utility and water supply being cut off at the courthouse because of failure to pay current bills, urged the Hope city council, in a special meeting Tuesday afternoon, to make some allowance because the county funds for this expenditure are already exhausted.

Judge Fred A. Luck, Treasurer Newt Pentecost, and County Clerk Frank Hill, told the council that $1,500 was appropriated at the beginning of the year for expenditures of this type and that the figure had already been exceeded by $400. They urged that the council make some allowance or special rate.

The council deferred action until the regular meeting next Tuesday night.

The council also voted to empower the mayor to exercise an option for the purchase of approximately 10 acres of land for a state police station site, provided the land is acceptable to the state. The site which will be submitted is located near the Missouri Pacific viaduct on Highway 67, about one mile east of the city.

No action was taken on a proposed ordinance to require permits for persons to open tourist courts or trailer camps inside the city.

Blevins Gets Superintendent

Dean H. Whiteside Succeeds A. B. Wetherington

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)— Dean H. Whiteside has resigned as principal of Mahleville school to become superintendent of Blevins schools, Hempstead county, Pulaski School Superintendent L. Watson announced Wednesday.

Mr. Whiteside succeeds A. B. Wetherington, who resigned the Blevins office this month to become superintendent of schools at Malvern.

Final Appeal Made by Nevada Co. Land Board of Army

The recent news releases stating that the forthcoming army maneuvers are to start in the vicinity of Prescott have greatly speeded the efforts of the local U. S. Army Land Board in its task of securing entry permits to all land in Nevada county. If troops move into the area before August 11, relatively little time remains to complete the job.

About ninety per cent of the land-use permits have been returned by land-owners and tenants. The remaining group includes those for which incorrect or insufficient addresses

4th Dixie Band Camp Meeting

Two Hope Persons Attend Camp at Monticello

The fourth annual Dixie Band Camp held at Monticello, Arkansas, got under way Sunday with the largest attendance in the history of the camp. According to the 1st test reports, students are attending from approximately seven states, Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee, Louisiana, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Texas. Members of the faculty are composed of bandmasters from these states: Mr. F. C. Wallick, Cleveland, Miss.; president of the Board of Directors and Mrs. R. B. Watson, Pine Bluff, Ark., is Dean of the Faculty.

The Dixie Band Camp is a non-profit organization held annually to provide an excellent vacation and at the same time afford instruction in all instruments with special emphasis placed on ensembles, solos, and group work. The scene on the campus of the Monticello A&M College Sunday afternoon was a busy one. Students, both large and small were arriving, registering, getting room assignments, and enrolling in classes. The daily schedule included interesting and valuable activities including individual and ensemble instruction, band rehearsals, history and elective classes in drum majoring and conducting.

Students are placed in three bands according to their individual ability and are taught according to their advancement in the field of music. The complete enrollment of attendance Monday morning when classes started. The Blue, or most advanced band of the camp will give a concert free to the public Sunday afternoon at the Municipal pool in Monticello. The public is invited to attend.

Warns Congress of Inflation

President Asks Authority to Fix Prices

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt asserting that inflationary price increases threatened to undermine "our defense efforts" asked Congress Wednesday to authorize him to establish a ceiling for prices.

"We face inflation unless we act decisively and without delay," the President said.

He also requested authority to purchase materials when it was necessary to assure price stability.

While refraining from seeking authority to put a limit on wages the President said he expected the "voluntary cooperation of labor to prevent labor cost from rising abnormally."

"Labor," he said, "has far more to gain from price stability than from abnormal wage increases."

These are likely to be illusory and quickly overtaken by sharp rises in living costs which fall with particular hardship on the least fortunate of our workers and our people," Roosevelt said.

The message went to a congress sharply divided on the question, which a House farm-bloc already has served notice they would oppose and who won approval Tuesday on a bill to prevent the marketing during an emergency of cotton and wheat stocks.

son of Thomas C. Couch, a Methodist minister and farmer.

His first outstanding success was the organization of a 15-mile rural telephone line in north Louisiana which he later sold to the Bell Telephone interests in 1911 for $1,500,000. His A. P. & L. company hooked up grew from two small plants purchased at Arkadelphia and Malvern about 30 years ago.

During the last ten years he gave up many titles acquired during his career, concentrating his attention of the further development of the A. P. & L. keystone of far-flung business interests.

He also retained membership on the boards of trustees of the Edison Electrical Institute; Peabody College; Southern Methodist University; Hendrix College, Conway; the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and his church at Pine Bluff.

He is survived by his widow the former Miss Jessie Johnson of Athens, La., four sons, Johnson of Kansas City, Harvey, Jr. of Little Rock; Kirk of Shreveport; and William Thomas of Princeton University and a daughter of Little Rock, and several brothers and sisters.

Happenings in the House

Patrick Gets Floor Jerked From Under Him

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON — There's a common expression—"I had the floor jerked out from under me"—and it applies to an actual incident in the House of Representatives. Here's the story:

Said the speaker pro tem: "Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Luther Patrick, a Birmingham Democrat) is recognized for 30 minutes."

Mr. Patrick: "Mr. Speaker, I should like to have you remember that this cry was raised by the Republicans and not by the Democrats. I just did not think it would be fair for us Democrats to sit around and let the Republicans get away with the pretense that they were building the national defense, etc."—one minute and 10 seconds.

Mr. Keefe (R-Wis.): "Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?"

Mr. Patrick: "I will not yield to a whole lot better for both of us if I yield later."

Mr. Keefe: "I want the gentleman to yield at that point."

Mr. Patrick: "Make a note of it. We will talk about it later!" (Two seconds.)

Mr. James W. Mott (R-Oregon): "Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for an inquiry?"

Cites Record
Mr. Patrick: "I want to state that the gentleman standing over there has a good national defense record. I will not yield at this time however."

Mr. Mott: "Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for an inquiry?"

Mr. Patrick: "I want to inquire at what point —"

Mr. Patrick: "If the gentleman will hold up his inquiry, no doubt it will be answered. . . ." (For 9 seconds.)

Mr. Mott: "Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?"

Mr. Patrick: "Congressman Mott of Oregon, who has not been here long enough to catch on to how his Republican brothers operate. . . ." (For 11 seconds.)

Mr. J. William Ditter (R-Pa.) "Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?"

Mr. Patrick: "No, I cannot yield to the gentleman now. I wish I could. Do not beg me because you will break my heart. . . ."

Mr. Ditter: "Mr. Speaker will the gentleman yield in view of the conversation we had over the telephone?"

Mr. Patrick: "If I yield to the gentleman, he will run off. . . ."

Mr. Mott: "Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?"

Mr. Patrick: "No, I will yield at the end of my speech, but not now. . . ." (Two seconds.)

Mr. Mott: "Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that there is not a quorum present. . . ."

Mr. Patrick: "That will suit me; get a quorum call, and we shall have more folks here. I should have known they would commence hollering."

Mr. Speaker: "Evidently there is no quorum present."

Two Possible Motions
(At this point there are two motions, according to the rules of order, which may be offered. The first is a motion for a quorum—that is, calling all available members into the House. The second motion takes precedence over the first. It is the motion to adjourn.)

Mr. Lawrence Lewis (D-Colo.): "Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn."

And it did.

That is what is known as getting the floor jerked right out from under you. Thirty minutes Mr. Patrick had and—count it up—he didn't get three.

Although he was purple in the face several times while this parliamentary blitzkrieg was in progress, when it was all over, strolling down the Capitol corridor, Mr. Patrick said: "Nev-
